Part II

25

1. All persons shall have the right to equality before the law.

No person shall unfairly suffer discrimination, direct or indirect, on any ground such as race, colour, language, nationality, national, social or ethnic origin, membership of the Traveller community, age, gender, disability, sexual orientation, culture, religion, political or other opinion, birth or marital, family or other status. Regard may, however, be had to relevant differences.

Nothing in this section prohibits measures of a limited and proportionate nature for the protection and advancement of persons unfairly disadvantaged by discrimination or economic or social exclusion in order to enable, as far as practicable, the full and equal enjoyment by them of their rights and freedoms.

In particular, the State may impose an obligation on some or all sections of the community to take reasonable steps to accommodate the needs of persons with a physical or mental disability, notwithstanding that the provision for that purpose of appropriate facilities or treatment may give rise to a cost.

TWENTY-FIRST AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION
(NO. 4) BILL, 1999

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

---

Purpose of Bill

The purpose of the Bill is to amend Article 40 of the Constitution ("Personal Rights") by making extended provision relating to the right to equality before the law.

The new section prohibits unfair discrimination and sets out an indicative list of unfair grounds. An exemption is provided in favour of affirmative action, or positive discrimination. It is also provided that, in particular, the State may impose obligations to take reasonable steps to accommodate the needs of persons with a physical or mental disability.

Provisions of Bill

Section 1 amends Article 40 of the Constitution by substituting a new section for section 1, the text of which is set out in the Schedule to the Bill.

Section 2 is a standard provision relating to the citation of the Bill and amendment.

*An Teachta Ruairí Ó Cuinn,
Samhain, 1999.*
