PRESS STATEMENT

13 February 1997

German Government did oppose McAliskey
but application is nothing could be said
in court by us about these stories.

Suggestions in today's Independent and Irish Post that Roisin McAliskey will be handcuffed during the birth of her child are untrue.

But in my view
the L-1

The Prison Service gave an undertaking in January 1996 that women prisoners will not be handcuffed during childbirth.

possibly have not

Once a prisoner goes into hospital for the purpose of giving birth, any restraints are removed until the prisoner is due to return to the prison. This policy applies equally to Roisin McAliskey.
